X ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Bert Cornelius is an insurance physician at the Social Security Institute (UWV) office in Groningen, the Netherlands, and a senior researcher at the Dutch Research Center for Social Insurance Medicine, Department of Health Sciences, Community and Occupational Medicine of the University Medical Center Groningen, the Netherlands. He combined his medical training with an education at the Minerva Art Academy in Groningen. After receiving his medical degree, he briefly considered a career as a medical illustrator. Instead, he decided to specialize in general practice and later in insurance medicine, but kept on working as an illustrator and cartoonist. To avoid spending his whole life sitting down behind a desk or a drawing table, he enjoys long-distance running and long unsupported hikes through mountainous terrain. He is married and has three children.
